

Henry B. Claggett

(1863 – 10 Mar 1905)

The Washington Herald, March 11, 1905

Railroad Engineer Dies of Spinal Trouble

After a protracted illness at his home, 506 7th street s.w., Harry Claggett, a well-known railroad engineer employed on the Pennsylvania Road, died late yesterday afternoon. Spinal trouble is said to have been the cause. He survived by a widow and several children.