

Thomas E. Purdy

(– 30 Jan 1924)

Purdy. Suddenly, January 30, 1924, at 11 p.m., at his residence at Home Springs, Va., Thomas R. Purdy, aged 47. Funeral Saturday, February 2, at 2:30 p.m. Interment at Congressional cemetery

The Washington Post, February 1, 1924, p. 13

Thomas E. Purdy Dead

Thomas E. Purdy, 47, a locomotive engineer employed by the Pennsylvania railroad, was stricken with acute indigestion while on his way to his home Wednesday night, and died before medical aid could be summoned. He is survived by his widow and several children.

Burial will be in the Congressional cemetery in Washington, but the funeral arrangements have not been completed.